HAWKEYE TEAM OUT TO AVENGE THREE DEFEATS

Crowd Overflows Stadium for Crucial Game—Weather Uncomfortably Warm for Players—Invading Gridders Built Around Dick Crayne and Oze Simmons.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

The largest crowd of the season jammed Memorial stadium Saturday afternoon to watch the University of Nebraska and University of Iowa in their traditional game. A throng estimated at more than 33,000 overflowed the stands and spilled over the bleachers erected at each end of the field.

The battle was the twenty-fifth between the Cornhuskers and Hawkeyes, the standing before the opening kickoff being 14 victories for Nebraska, 7 for Iowa and 3 tie games.

For the past three years, the Scarlet has emerged triumphant but this year Iowa is favored with Coach Ossie Solem having a powerful team built around Dick Crayne, husky fullback, and Oze Simmons, brilliant colored ball-lugger.

Sun Burns Down.

The weather was ideal for spectators but too warm for the players, the sun shooting down on the bowl where the athletes tugged and sweated.

The stadium crowd started arriving early. The large bunch of early arrival caused Business Manager of Athletiucs John K. Selleck to order the general admission gates opened at 11 o'clock, three hours before gametime. Knotholers started pouring into the bleauchers at 12:30 and a half hour later the reserved sections started filling.

Saturday was Band Day and more than a dozen bands paraded the Lincoln streets and marched to the stadium where they entertained the early arrivals with a brief massed band concert.

The crowd in the knothole section overflowed the bleachers and covered the bank at the north of the practice field.

TIME EXTENSION IS GRANTED FOR NEW CORN LOAN

Farmers May Apply Until Called On To Pay Old Loans.

Nebraska farmers were granted a time extension of the expiration date when they could make new corn loans Saturday morning by William S. Bradley, executive assistant to the finance director at Washington. In telephone conversation with State Railway Commissioner Randall, Bradley said that all corn borrowers should be notified that they can make applications for new loans up to the time they are called on individually by the government to pay the old loan.

This in effect, extends the time on the old loans, indefinitely, the railway commission pointed out. Telegraph confirmation of the statement made to Randall is expected to reach Lincoln Saturday afternoon. Bradley called in answer to an urgent appeal Friday from the commission for a time extension, that if October 15 was held to as a deadline for new loans, only 200 would be made in the state and the corn would be forced on the market.

Another Concession.

Bradley also stated that where there were no banking facilities the borrower may send his new note direct to the loan agency with instructions to take up the old note and return the proceeds. Under the new setup farmers will be enabled to retain much needed corn which otherwise they could not do.

Traffic Jamed As Bands March Preceding Game

Traffic was jammed but there was plenty of music in the air Saturday noon as nearly 1000 bandsmen paraded through the downtown section on their way to the stadium. It was annual high school Band Day and 20 bands were represented in the parade which lasted nearly three-quarters of an hour.

The route of march from formation at Fifteenth and N streets sent the musicians west to Tenth, north to O, east to Twelfth, and north to the stadium. On the field they massed for pre-game tunes under the direction of William T. "Billy" Quick, director of the University of Nebraska R. O. T. C. band which led the parade. Cadet officers guided each group.

In the parade were the following bands: R. O. T. C., Dwight, Osmond, Seward, Babich's Boys, Holdrege, Pierce, Lincoln, Havelock, Wilber, Lincoln Postoffice, Dietze's Girls, Table Rock, Superior, Wesleyan, Burlington, York, Pawnee City, Sutton and Ceresco.

NEAL CHARGED WITH MURDER OF IDA HANSON

Accused In Complaint Of Killing Former Osceola Milliner.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., Oct. 13—(AP)—First degree murder charges were filed in District court today against Charles W. Neal, Colorado ex-convict, accused of beating to death Miss Ida Hanson, 55 year old milliner, formerly of Osceola, Neb. The filing of the charges followed an investigation which occupied Sheriff Ed Vinyard more than a year.

Neal denied he was involved in the killing and his attorneys indicated he will plead not guilty. He averred he was in the east at the time Miss Hanson was slain but Sheriff Vinyard said he has witnesses who will testify they saw a man closely resembling the ex-convict in Colorado near Cripple Creek in May and June of 1933.

OUTLAW ELUDES MISSOURI HUNT

Highway Patrol Chief Orders Troopers To Return to Posts.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 13—(AP)—Col. B. Marvin Casteel, superintendent of the Missouri highway patrol, today ordered all troopers engaged in the hunt for Charles Arthur (Pretty Boy) Floyd, outlaw, to return to their regular assignments.

For 24 hours 40 highway patrolmen and more than 250 peace officers sought to track down the southwest desperado who, with two companions, was believed to have been seen yesterday morning near Mexico, Mo. He was reported seen at other Missouri and southern Iowa points Friday.

"I have instructed my men to return to their regular posts," Castell said, "but we are not giving up the search."

The national guard airplane, which was used in the search for the gunmen yesterday, was held in readiness for any developments today.

The long vigil throughout the night, Casteel said, produced practically no clues.

Colorful Thousands Jam Lincoln Streets BeforeI owa-Husker Tilt

Talk about your crowds—they were in Lincoln Saturday for the annual football tilt between the Nebraska Cornhuskers and the Iowa Hawkeyes. As one pushed one's way along downtown sidewalks, it seemed a certainty that most of Nebraska's population and a third of Iowa's had migrated to the home of the Cornhuskers.

Long before 8 o'clock whistles sounded, small groups of high school youngsters were strolling in front of stores. Their colorful sweaters bore about as many letters as alphabet soup.

Traffic was heavy by noon. Auto horns blared at each other and at scurrying pedestrians. But everybody was happy and gay uniforms of fifteen bands added a carnival atmosphere to the hodgepodge of humanity.

Stores were crowded and reported a good business. Cafe counters were lined and it took agility to cross a hotel lobby. Here, fat men crowded together and told how somebody ran fifty yards back in 1911, or maybe it was '12.

Trundle To Stadium.

Along towards game time, taxis and private cars, loaded to the gunwales, trundled their way toward Memorial stadium. Young men in scarlet sweaters and coeds in red and cream colored outfits hurried with the rest along bannered sidewalks.

Halls and tower of the state capitol building were filled with sightseers Saturday as more than 3,000 people passed through the doors on inspection tours. According to Theodore Griess, information bureau head, it was one of the largest days so far for visitors.

GOOD CONTENDS O'SULLIVAN IS NOT ELIGIBLE

Court Hears Arguments In Mandamus Suit On Senator Filing.

Whether provisions in the laws of Nebraska prohibiting a candidate who has been defeated in the primaries running for the same or another office "by petition" at the ensuing election are ineffective as applied to a petition aspirant for United States senator was the central point of arguments heard by the Supreme court Saturday forenoon in the mandamus suit brought by Eugene D. O'Sullivan of Omaha against Secretary of State Swanson to compel the latter to accept the former's filing and certify his name to county clerks for a place on the official ballot.

Attorney General Good, upholding the secretary of state's refusal to receive and act upon the O'Sullivan petition, stood upon the theory that in the absence of any congressional enactment fixing the manner in which senatorial candidacies may be presented, the state has full power under the federal constitution to do so.

O'Sullivan appeared as his own counsel, contending that the restrictive statute relied upon by the secretary of state in rejecting his filing is an indirect attempt by

PLANE CARRIES BYRD BACK TO LITTLE AMERICA

Explorer Recovering After Long Vigil at Advance Weather Camp.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antartica (via MacKay Radio) Oct. 12—Delayed — (AP) — Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd returned by airplane today from his lonely winter vigil at his advance weather base.

Pilot Bill Bowlin seized upon the first decent weather in weeks to fly from here to Byrd's camp, pick up his commander and make the trip back.

The admiral had been out there since March 25.

He looked well, having improved remarkably since his illness in June. Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, who led the tractor party to Byrd's hut in August, made the trip back in the plane. He said Byrd had gained about 25 pounds in the last two months.

The other men of the tractor party remained at the Byrd hut.

COCHRAN SPENDS BUSY DAY FRIDAY

Campaigns With Wright; Talks At Broken Bow In Evening.

BY OTHO DEVILBISS

BROKEN BOW, Neb., Oct. 13—Concluding a day of intensive campaigning that began at McCook Friday morning, Roy Cochran, democratic candidate for governor, and William H. Wright, assistant attorney general and democratic candidate to succeed Paul Good, addressed a Custer county democratic rally here in the evening and then were introduced between halves of a high school football game.

The democratic campaigners were introduced by Emerson R. Purcell, Broken Bow publisher, to the football crowd, which saw Broken Bow's eleven defeat Ord 13 to 6.

Cochran and Wright spoke during the morning to large crowds at Cambridge and Beaver City in southern Nebraska, jumping to Callaway and Arnold for afternoon addresses. At Arnold, Mrs. L. M. Stetburg, state committeewoman, introduced the candidates.

The spirit of western hospitality was exemplified at Arnold, when all local candidates present, including as many republicans as democrats, were introduced, speaking over the same address system.

Cochran's plans for next week contemplate spending Monday and Tuesday in Omaha and the remainder of the week in the northwestern part of the state, concluding the week's campaigning at North Platte. Wright will accompany him.

HUSBAND WAITS FOR ABDUCTOR TO KEEP WORD

Federal Agents and Police Begin Thorough Search of Entire Area Around 16-Acre Louisville Estate—Stoll, Wealthy Oil Man, Says He Is "Hopefully Waiting."

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 13 — (AP)—Fear that Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll might have been killed by the kidnaper who stole her from her home Wednesday was indicated today by a sudden rush of city and county police and federal agents to search the entire area around the 16-acre Stoll estate on the fashionable Lime Kiln Lane near here.

Belief that the woman's body might be found was expressed by one policeman as he dashed up in the sudden convergence of about 50 officers, in striking contrast to the withdrawal of all guards a short time before yesterday's announcement that the ransom demands had been met.

Dunlap Wakefield, Louisville director of safety, who led one party, concentrated upon a long abandoned house a few miles southward of the Stoll home. He searched it intensively from cellar to attic, poking under its partly fallen-in floors, but his only answer to a question prompted by the policeman's remark as to whether he was looking for Mrs. Stoll's body, the $50,000 ransom or the kidnaper himself, was, "I can't say, except that we are overlooking no clues."

Divided Into Four Parties.

Wakefield, accompanied by Forrest A. Taylor, president of the Louisville board of aldermen, poked into an old rotting corn crib on the place and into the hollow stump of a dead tree. The officers were divided into four parties, some of them including about 35 ex-service men, and

AURORA FARMER KILLED BY CAR

Trip to Football Game Marred By Fatal Accident.

AURORA, Neb., Oct. 13—(AP)—William Schertz, 72, was instantly killed near here this morning when struck by a car driven by Elmer Coates, of North Platte. The acicdent occurred about 10 o'clock just east of Aurora. Mr. Coates, with his family, was motoring to Lincoln to see the Iowa-Nebraska game.

Schertz, witnesses said, had been examining some work done on the highway which runs by his farm, and evidently became confused when the Coates car approached. It was said he jumped directly into the path of the car, the driver being unable to avoid hitting the man.

An inquest was held immediately following the accident and Coates absolved of any criminal negligence.

As Rogers Sees It

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Oct. 13 — In my late world pilgrimage, in search of a definite platform for the republican party, I hit about a half dozen of those Balkan nations, and Yugoslavia, where this murdered king come from, was one of em. I learned quite a little bit about him and his country. He was the only king over there that really did his own "dictating." Generally those kings just do a little "kinging" and let somebody else do the "rough stuff." He is a Serbian, but there's another band of people in his country called the Croats. Well the Croats are sorter like the "Liberty Leaguers" are here. They say they are downtrodden. But the one thing their whole country is united in, is that they hate Italy.

Well a Croat killed the king, and it was in France. But the whole country is united in saying that Mussolini furnished the ammunition. Well' why not blame poor old Mussolini, didn't Roosevelt bring on the drouth? Yours for European news thats fit to print.

NEW DEAL ONLY HALF COMPLETE

—BLOOD

Instructor Speaks to Ad Sorority Convention; Officers Renamed.

"The new deal has completed only half of its task," Prof. F. C. Blood of the University of Nebraska, told the noon luncheon meeting of Gamma Alpha Chi's national convention at the Y. W. C. A. Saturday. Prof. Blood spoke to the young advertising women on "The Place of Advertising in the New Deal."

"Consumption and production are an endless process," he said. "The new deal has primed the pump time after time for production, and production is benefiting by it. But the new deal has failed to recognize the consumption side of the question. They have failed to advertise and stimulate consumer interest. The new deal has done only half of its job. The other half remains to be done."

Miss Carpenter

At the morning business session at Ellen Smith hall all of the officers of the sorority were re-elected. Miss Norma Carpenter of Wayne is president; Mrs. Alta Gwinn Saunders of Urbana, Ill., is vice-president; Mrs. Taina Nelson of Seattle, Wash., is secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Robert Speer of Spokane, Wash., is editor of the national magazine.

In the afternoon the convention adjourned to the stadium to see the Iowa-Nebraska football clash. A banquet is scheduled to close the two-day conclave.

Hitler Faces Open Church Rebellion

MUNICH, Germany, Oct. 13—(AP)—Open rebellion in the Evangelical church confronted Adolf Hitler today for the first time since nazi dictatorship embraced religion and every other field of German endeavor.

A crisis appeared imminent as a result of the ousting of Bishop Hans Meiser of Bavaria yesterday on charges of opposition to the nazi state.

The mutiny spread rapidly. Born of insubordination in Evangelical ranks after Hitlerites attempted to regiment Protestant church folk, it flared into a demonstration by thousands of objectors last night. The reichsbishop was booed; the government was ridiculed; Chancellor Hitler was jeered.

Bishop Meiser and eight other opposition leaders were under arrest.

Activities To Be Numerous This Evening

Many Will Attend Dinner Dances At Eastridge And Country Clubs.

AS ONE naturally would expect, the news today centers around after - the-game activities, and most of these are at the country clubs. The campus crowd will no doubt divide its time between the two country clubs and the university coliseum where, we understand, Red Perkins and his band will do the honors of the evening.

Both the Lincoln Country club and the Eastridge Country club have tendencies toward a full house this evening—about three hundred will be present at the Lincoln Country club dinner and dance, and probably there will be two hundred at the Eastridge club.

the state to impose extra qualifications for United States senators, which he declared to be an unconstitutional usurpation of authority possessed only by the national congress.

After listening to both lawyers for an hour, the court took the case under advisement, allowing O'Sullivan the rest of the day to file a reply brief supplementing his oral argument.

Says Voters' Rights Infringed.

In presenting his side of the case, O'Sullivan declared that the turning down of petitions with 1,600 signatures asking to have his name placed on the ballot was in effect a denial of the right of the voters to "draft" a candidate and place him in nomination.

One thousand names on such a petition would ordinarily be sufficient to get the candidate's name on the ticket, but this one was ruled out because O'Sullivan had been a candidate for governor in the recent democratic primary.

The Omahan insisted that the state cannot add to the qualifications of United States senators as fixed by the federal constitution, which are three in number, namely: Age, 30 years; American citizenship, 9 years; and residence in the state from which the senator is elected.

The case from Michigan, involving Senator Newberry's right to a seat in the upper branch of congress because of alleged excessive expenditures in the primary contest, where the U. S. Supreme court held the congressional corrupt practices law unconstitutional, (this act being later repealed), was cited by O'Sullivan in support of his contentions.

He also referred to a ruling by Attorney General Good some months ago, which held that District Judge H. H. Rhoades was eligible for congress in the second district notwithstanding a state law which forbids members of the judiciary to run for any other than a non-political office. His own situation. O'Sullivan said, is similar to Rhodes, both being aspirants for federal office and, therefore, as he maintained, beyond the pale of state laws undertaking to circumscribe their candidacies.

Good Assails Inconsistency.

At the outset of his argument, Attorney General Good took O'Sullivan to task for assailing the state law on one hand and then seeking to avail himself of it on the other.

"If the law is no good and does not apply, why did he bother himself to obtain 1,600 signatures to his petition in order to conform with the requirement that there must be at least 1,000 names on such a filing?" Good asked.

"If his first contention is correct, he would merely need to file his own name with the secretary of state and say: 'I want my name on the ballot.' But if he could do that, anyone else could do the same, and we might have several hundred persons coming in and demanding to have their names printed on the ballot also. This would be very expensive to the taxpayers as well as confusing to the voters. There must be some practical limitation on these things."

Good suggested that O'Sullivan might have taken steps to form a new party and got his name on its ticket, or that voters may write in his name on the election ballot or that their rights are in no way foreclosed by the prohibition against double candidacies.

"In the absence of legislation by congress as to the time, place, and manner of holding an election, state laws must govern," the attorney general maintained. "All powers not expressly delegated to congress and exercised by it are reserved to the states, under the federal constitution.

Good drew a distinction between the Rhoades candidacy and the attempted petition filing by O'Sullivan, declaring the question in the former instance was purely that of eligibility while in the latter it involved the method of obtaining a nomination.

HUSBAND WAITS FOR ABDUCTOR TO KEEP WORD

they combed the woods and brush southward of the Stoll estate.

Berry V. Stoll, wealthy oil company executive and husband of the young society matron, announced a short time before the sudden burst of activity he was "waiting hopefully" and intended to remain at home all day.

His cryptic announcement to the press, evidently intended for the kidnaper's eyes wherever the latter might be, did not explain how the ransom had been paid out, but its issuance, which followed a mysterious dash he made southward into Kentucky, was followed by expressions of hopefulness from his family and that of William S. Speed, retired capitalist and father of the victim.

All airplanes except through transports were ordered grounded and these orders were reissued today just before the frantic search was undertaken.

pictures serve as a control—that is, an instrument to adjustment or to the satisfaction of one's desires, in telling of the influence of movies on human behavior. "Pictures affect one person one way, and another in an entirely different manner," he said, pointing out that everyone may go to the same picture and still receive different 'thrills' and have different reactions, many of them being for the best.

Delinquency Findings.

Professor Hayes pointed out three striking findings in a delinquency study recently completed, stating that "approximately ten per cent of the 368 male criminals giving their motion picture experiences believed motion pictures to have had some direct effect on their criminal careers."

Discussing the influence of the radio, the speaker said that it is a linear form of communication, with the greatest weakness being that it reaches only one sense.

Dr. F. M. Eliot, St. Paul, spoke on "Professional Responsibility in the New Social Order." Later a brief discussion was led by Josef Zacherle of Des Moines. Eliot declared that the main characteristic of the new social order is the basis of planned economy.

Professional Responsibility.

"The effort to stop this trend on the part of those who disapprove of some of its bad features will simply result in exaggerating the very elements in the situation which these opponents object to. The only possible procedure is for those who see the dangers inherent in a planned society to use all of their ingenuity to guide and control the inevitable movement," he declared.

"In this respect the professional men have a part of special importance. Most of the dangers of a planned society must first be perceived by professional men and will bear hardest upon them," he continued. "It is their job to instruct public opinion and to lead public sentiment so as to avoid the kind of interference with basic human rights."

The only special part of Saturday's program for the ladies was a conducted tour of the Nebraska capitol and the governor's mansion in the late forenoon, with Mrs. Thomas E. Allen as sponsor.

Rockford, Ill. was selected for the 1935 convention. A resolution of condolence was passed expressing sympathy at the death of Thomas Kimball who recently died at Omaha. He was one of the founders of the organization and was a member of the board of directors at the time of his death.

The group also passed a resolution recognizing junior membership to the organization, including men between the ages of 20 and 30, who are either graduates or students of professional schools, or who are active in professional lines.

Senatorial Candidates Again Engage In Debate; Third Victim Of Chalco Fire Succumbs

BURKE, SIMMONS IN WORD CLASH

Immense Crowd Hears Candidates Debate at North Platte.

Burke Says Opponent Tried To Defeat Nebraska Projects.

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., Oct. 13 — (AP) — Nebraska's senatorial nominees headed westward today for Scottsbluff for another in their series of 10 debates after clashing over the new deal before an overflow crowd here last night.

Throngs which couldn't crowd into the hall listened to the arguments from loud speakers on the street as Robert G. Simmons, republican, charged the NRA with "monopoly gouging" which increased living costs and E. R. Burke, democrat, said the Roosevelt administration emergency measures saved the nation from collapse in a time of crisis.

The name of Arthur F. Mullen, former democratic national committeeman for Nebraska, again was injected into the debates as Simmons called "Mullenism" an issue while Burke insisted the campaign should be fought on merits of the new deal program and not on "smoke screens."

New Deal Is Argued.

The virtues of individual initiative and the pioneering spirit extolled by Simmons were set over against the claimed benefits of a planned program for economic recovery sketched by Burke.

Simmons said regulation of business and agriculture by Washington bureaus is no way out of the depression and said eighteen months of the new deal left a treasury deficit of six billion dollars, which he charged would amount to eleven billion in another year.

Burke said the new deal policies had rescued the nation from economic paralysis resulting from 12 years of republican rule. He said his opponent failed to offer any concrete program to substitute for the Roosevelt policies, leaving as the only alternative, a return to a "hands off" policy such as ended with the March, 1933, bank crisis.

Simmons Against Project.

Replying to Simmons' charge of "Mullenism" still is an issue, Burke said Simmons tried to block the Columbus power project while Mullen was working in Washington for its approval by the PWA.

"My opponent was entitled as an attorney to represent whom he chose," Burke said. "But the record at least shows he was working against these projects which are bringing $15,000,000 in federal funds into Nebraska for power and irrigation development, while Mullen was working for them in Washington."

Simmons replied he represented three railroad employes at a protest hearing because he believed building of the project would curtail employment by reducing the annual coal tonnage shipped into Nebraska by 200,000 tons.

Sanitary Engineer Is Wanted In State Health Department

HASTINGS, Neb., Oct. 12—(AP)—The League of Nebraska Municipalities Friday asked establishment of a sanitary engineering division in the state health department. The resolution was passed at the closing session of the annual convention after a report of a special committee on water and sewage systems was presented. Members of the committee were John F. Rohn of Fremont, Paul W. Doerr of Lincoln and R. B. Boals of Fairbury.

Dr. Strong Says Nebraska Had Civilization Which Antedated The Mayan Era; Describes Finds

Searching for Mayan ruins in Spanish Honduras is a unique and exciting experience Dr. W. Duncan Strong indicated to his audience of 150 at the annual convention banquet of the Interprofessional Institute Friday night. Slides and moving pictures brought the adventures and the finds of the Smithsonian Institution archeological party to the darkened hall in the Lincoln hotel as Dr. Strong, former Nebraskan, described the trip.

Work in territory exposed to Nicaraguan bandit raids, camping in colorful semi-tropic sites and a 400-mile trip through the jungle by mule-back and airplane were some of the highlights of the expedition, Dr. Strong explained. Archeologically, the search for Mayan ruins resulted in uncovering many unknown sites.

On Bay Islands.

The territory covered was in Central America, in the southern part of Honduras, near Nicaragua. The expedition investigated primarily in the Patuca and Guampa river regions and on the Bay islands. With Dr. Strong were Dr. Allen Paine, of Johns Hopkins university, and Norman Haskell, Harvard.

Dr. Strong prefaced his talk by pointing out that here in Nebraska is one of the richest sources of archeological study yet found. As a member of the sociology department of the university from 1929-31 Dr. Strong organized and directed the archeological survey which revealed important evidence of prehistoric agricultural civilizations, antedating even the Mayan empire.

"Since I left your state, archeology here has made tremendous strides," he said. "Dr. Earl Bell of the university and Dr. A. T. Hill of the historical society have done wonders. Already your state's display of its prehistoric culture is one of the best in the midwest.

"Right here in Nebraska finds have been made which antedate anything I'll be able to show you from Honduras."

The area of the Mayan culture, he explained, is in the inner group of the three main economic divisions of the western hemisphere peoples, being the home of societies based on intensive agriculture. It was from the Bay islands that Columbus first glimpsed the mainland on his fourth and last trip across the Atlantic, when he reported meeting people who had many articles of trade, such as copper bells, woven cloth, implements.

Offertory Sites.

Near the same places, Dr. Strong and his party uncovered articles similar to those described by narrators on the Columbus voyage. Offertory sites yielded rich finds of small copper bells, ornaments, beads, and fine figurines. Almost all of these indicated southern rather than strictly Mayan influence, Strong said.

"The 400-mile trip by mule was particularly unusual," he said, "because we had with us only two cans of tomatoes, three bottles of worcestershire sauce and perhaps a bottle of whiskey. We'd been told we could get food along the way from natives, but as it turned out, our staple item of diet the whole distance was green boiled bananas, morning, night and noon."

It was far in the interior of Honduras that 20 great sites never before described were found by the party.

"The Bay Island finds indicate that perhaps the mother culture centered in South America," Dr. Strong stated, "and that it may have spread outward to the Antilles and through Nicaragua, Honduras and the islands."

Dr. Gayle C. Walker, of the University of Nebraska, served as program chairman for the meeting and introduced Dr. Strong. National officers present were also introduced.

Music was provided by a string quartet consisting of Eunice Bingham, Marjorie Smith, Margaret Baker and Mary Louise Baker.

Welfare Board Out In Platte County

COLUMBUS, Neb., Oct. 13 — (AP)—By a 4 to 2 vote, the Platte county board of supervisors adopted a resolution discontinuing the county welfare board created three years ago under the enabling act passed by the 1931 legislature. Bible Predicts a Husker Come-Back Against Hawkeyes Predicting that the Nebraska football team would pull one of the greatest come-backs in the history of football when they meet Iowa Saturday afternoon, Coach Dana X. Bible spoke to a rally crowd of more than 3,000 loyal Cornhusker football fans in the Memorial stadium Friday night.

Coach Bible said that he had heard many reports from Iowa concerning the prowess of Ozzie Simmons, who is known as the "Midnight Express." "Although they say that this boy Simmons is going to 'carry the mail tomorrow,' I have heard that sometimes the 'mail is delayed,'" Bible dryly commented.

Other speakers at the rally also predicted that Nebraska would show Iowa that they were a hard team to whip on their home field. The speakers were George Henry Sauer, Game Captain Rollin "Bud" Parsons, Irving Hill and Louise Hossack.

Led by the R. O. T. C. band, directed by William T. "Billy" Quick, the students staged a parade down sorority and fraternity row before going to the stadium.

Haynes Predicts That Nebraska Will Be One Of First To Recover

Recovery is far more important than relief, Rowland Haynes told 500 Nebraska farmers here Friday at a successful "emergency livestock day." He expressed the belief Nebraska will be one of the first states to get out of the relief picture.

Besides Haynes, W. H. Brokaw, L. A. White, Prof. H. J. Gramlich, and L. Oscar Challman appeared on the afternoon program.

Brokaw, state AAA administrator, made his first public talk since the corn-hog referendum of last week. He said if the plan is not perfect it should be changed to meet present conditions.

White, rural rehabilitation director, explained the workings of the livestock relief program in Nebraska.

L. Oscar Challman of Omaha, general agent for the farm credit administration, in telling about agricultural credit said the regional agricultural credit corporation is gradually liquidating in a orderly fashion, and will eliminate the direct lending of government funds to agriculture, as the emergency gradually disappears .

With a cattle population now of approximately 2,500,000 in Nebraska, Prof. H. J. Gramlich declared that it is doubtful if more than 1,500,000 can be carried through the winter with the available roughages.

Norris Tells Origin Of Double Barreled Legislative Bodies

COLUMBUS, Neb., Oct. 13—(AP)—A plea for a simpler and more economical system was made here Friday by Senator George W. Norris in campaigning for his one-house legislature proposal. Norris asserted the two-house legislature, formed in the days when one house represented aristocracy and the other the common people, has been outgrown.

Replying to the objection that his plan would make it easier for "interests" to control the legislature through its smaller number, Norris said that under the present system "interests" need only control a majority of the still smaller conference committee.

FRIENDSHIP.

"YOU'RE my friend"—Browning wrote.
"What a thing friendship is, world without end."

Mr. Browning would find much over which to philosophize in the present campaign for the governorship in Nebraska. For men who were friends are rivals for that high post—Roy Cochran and Dwight Griswold. Together they had attended the University of Nebraska. Together they had taken the vows of a college fraternity. Together they had marched through those exhilarating years of college campus activity, to cement a friendship which was to remain unbroken in the years that followed. Together they were in the years of war in defense of the country and together they were when, upon returning to civil life, they established homes. Their families became fast friends. Their children played together. They and their families found pleasure and companionship in spending vacations together. So when Nebraska republicans nominated as their candidate Dwight Griswold, and Nebraska democrats nominated as their candidate Roy Cochran, people said here would be a campaign without the usual political accompaniments.

But the people were mistaken.

For no sooner had Dwight Griswold won his nomination than he began a surprising campaign in the form of an attack on his friend which was based on the charge Roy Cochran could not formulate his own policies or make his own decisions. He was the tool of a master, putty in the hands of a "boss" a servile and subservient bootlicker who takes orders. Now if there is any one thing in the world that one rival may say of another which is reprehensible it is to utter charges that his friend is a puppet. Through all the years Dwight Griswold enjoyed the comradeship of Roy Cochran, as thousands of others entertained a high regard for him, for his splendid character, but upon becoming a political antagonist, Mr. Griswold suddenly discovers that Mr. Cochran lacks all of the qualities which characterize a man. He suddenly discovers Mr. Cochran built political highways, wasting huge sums of money for the taxpayers. He suddenly discovers Mr. Cochran's associates are unsavory and constitute a menace to the state. Mr. Griswold should beware of the friendship he cultivates. He awakens to a knowledge of just what a poor sort of a chap his friend, Roy Cochran, is much too late, and only when Mr. Cochran happened to be a rival candidate for the same post.

We can see Mr. Griswold chortling and chuckling.

Friendship ends when politics begins and anything is fair in war. But we submit that if leaders are to retain the faith and confidence of people, it all these experiences through which we have passed in recent years are to usher in a more decent and wholesome public life, the false and vile accusations which constitute the burden of Mr. Griswold campaign should be relegated to the rubbish heap.

He had an offer from this newspaper to select the principal highways in this state and name mile for mile what he considers the political highways. He hasn't accepted that offer.

The issue in this campaign is clear.

Roy Cochran is clean, honest, and able. His sympathies are entirely with the underlying philosophy of fundamental objectives of the New Deal. He would bring to the governor's office as broad, as thorough, and as intelligent an understanding of the problems of the state of Nebraska as any man who could be selected. Just at this time, there has been presented before the supreme court at Washington the issue of water rights. Just at this time, the problem of water conservation is the most important issue before the people of Nebraska. What could Mr. Griswold offer in the way of leadership on this problem? The only thing that Mr. Griswold can offer the people of Nebraska is the McKelvie brand of standpat republicanism, as attested by his legislative career where he followed faithfully the conservative leadership of Mr. McKelvie. And it is this issue of experience against inexperience; of a superb knowledge of the state as contrasted with, at best, a superficial knowledge; a sympathetic attitude toward the New Deal as contrasted with bitter and uncompromising hostility and enmity.

ORIGIN OF BICAMERAL ASSEMBLY.

THAT was an excellent point made by Dr. John P. Senning in his address at Columbus favoring the Norris proposal for a one house legislature. Dr. Senning said that the bicameral idea had its beginning at a time when different qualifications were prescribed for members of the two houses. Now that the members of both the house and the senate are elected purely upon a population basis there is no further need for two houses.

The two house plan harks back to the days when only the lower house was elected on the basis of population or of towns and boroughs. Membership in the house of lords in England was hereditary, consisting only of those who had been elevated to the peerage or were members thereof by inheritance. They were depended upon to keep a "check" upon the commoners, and when they failed to do the bidding of royalty the king would elevate to the ranks of peers a sufficient number of those who could be depended upon by him to control the house of lords.

In many of the states in the earlier days there were property qualifications and other limitations on membership in the upper house, which was made up of what was considered the aristocracy, this thought being borrowed from England. The sessions of the senate of the United States were for a number of years held in secret, this being one of the ideas of Alexander Hamilton, according to whose philosophy, the right to govern should be lodged in property. It was not desirable, he believed, that mere people should know what arguments were made or steps taken in the senate to "check" the actions of their representatives in the more democratic house.

Since those earlier days significant changes have taken place, and while a bicameral national congress is required in order that all states may be equally represented in one branch, nothing of the kind is required in state legislatures. In Nebraska and most of the other commonwealths representation in the legislature is based entirely upon population. There is no longer an upper house, made up of aristocracy or wealth, whose province is to prevent commoners from interfering with privilege or property.

And in view of the fact that conditions which brought the two house body into existence no longer exist, there is no further use for the bicameral assembly.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

THERE is certain to be some form of old age pension introduced at the next congress. President Roosevelt has promised to seek such legislation, and soon he will have the country's leading industrialists and labor leaders in Washington for a conference with his committee on social security, at which time old-age pensions, unemployment insurance and other forms of social security will be discussed. The committee's recommendations will go to congress.

Among the questions that the Roosevelt security committee must decide are these: Whether the old age pension should be compulsory or optional with the states; how the money is to be raised, and whether it should be an outright federal grant or handled on a matching basis with the states. A recent labor department survey shows, among other things, that mandatory state statutes have been more successful than optional. The survey disclosed a growing difficulty with regard to funds, especially in states where the county bears the whole cost.

Twenty-eight states now have old age pension laws, twenty-three being mandatory, the rest leaving it to the counties whether they want to participate. At the end of 1933 pensions actually were being paid in only sixteen states. These were aiding 115,547 old persons at a cost during the year of $25,950,000. New York was in the lead with 44 per cent of the total pensioners and 53 per cent of the total outlay, or 51,106 persons at a cost of $13,592,000. But it appears that the peak has been reached in the Empire state and now is on the decline. Monthly disbursements are also declining in New York, due partly to decreased funds and partly to a scaling down of benefits considered to have been too liberal in the beginning.

The rate of pension ranges from $12.50 a month to $45. Most states pay $25 or $30. The required period of state residence varies from 5 to 35 years. Seven of the states provide the state shall pay the whole cost, nine provide for state aid to counties, and the others place the entire cost on the county.

Deshler Muny Light Motion Is Submitted

Federal Judge Munger took under advisement Saturday morning a defendant's motion to dismiss the equity suit which plaintiffs seek to enjoin the village of Deshler from building a municipal light and power plant. The plaintiffs are mortgage bondholders of the Southern Nebraska company and include the Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, United Trust of Abilene, Kas., and a number of private citizens.

In the arguments Saturday the defendant alleged there was no cause of action. At one point the plaintiff's attorney alleged the duplication of power poles in Deshler would result in a public hazard. The defense attorneys, who said they failed to see the right of the Harris Trust company in the suit, declared "we do not believe the poles will fall on the Harris Trust company."

JACK FROST

A killer! kinder word to choose
For him I cannot find.
He slaughters beauty to amuse
His strangely fashioned kind.

Though some there are who kill for meat
And some an end to make
To bitter love they fancied sweet,
He kills for killing's sake.

Last night my garden plot he found
With blossoms, pink and red,
And ere he left he strewed the ground
With lovely dahlias dead.

He did not steal my flowers away
Nor seek a wrong to right,
But for amusement and for play
At murder spent the night.

Now horrid are the sights I see.
For murder has been done.
I think how vile Jack Frost must be
Who kills the flowers for fun!

TELLS TEACHERS HOW TO PUT BLOOM IN CHEEKS

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Oct 13—P—Dr G W Rosenlof of the University of Nebraska may not frown upon rosy cheeked teachers but when he addressed the Otoe county teacher's institute here, he advised the teachers to get the color from nature and not out of a box. He said cosmetics on teachers had a baneful effect on students.

"Don't try to improve upon nature," he said, "but go out and see it, that will put enough bloom in your cheeks"

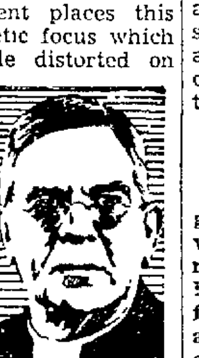
QUESTION.

Raleigh, N. C.

How is it possible to believe in an all-wise, all-powerful, beneficent Creator who would allow noble-minded, unselfish and intelligent men and women to die in agony and at the same time permit perverts, murderers and the selfish to live on and inflict injury upon all that is right and decent? Fourteen months ago my beloved wife died in terrible agony and since then I have been in darkness and chaos. Could you help me a little?

ANSWER.

Your bereavement places this inquiry in a pathetic focus which is perhaps a little distorted on that account. Upon second thoughts you may concede that as a rule noble-minded, unselfish and charitable people do not die in mental agony or horror. Nor do perverts and murderers live on in power and prosperity. On the contrary, the way of the righteous is blessed, even when physically painful, and the way of the transgressor is hard. I deeply appreciate that yours is a real difficulty and one which arises with the earliest awakenings of reflective intelligence. It baffled the author of that mighty drama, the book of Job. It has provoked in many minds of different eras the skepticism you express. Why the righteous or the innocent should suffer is an insurgent query.



Some have tried to answer it by saying that all suffering is the work of diabolic agencies which interfere with a benevolent Creator's designs. But this theory places God under serious limitations. John Stuart Mill reasoned that if God cannot protect a splendid woman like your wife He is not all powerful; if He can and will not, He is not all good. Others attach suffering to sin, as did Job's sorry comforters; and also those bystanders who asked Jesus concerningt he blind man, "Who did sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind?" They received an answer which may help you. "Neither hath this man sinned nor his parents; but that the works of God should be made manifest in him" (Saint John ix, 1-3).

Christ's afflictions were borne for the selfsame end. Saint Paul sought identity with his Lord in this respect and so have innumerable other believers. They triumphed over tribulations inflicted on them and those which advancing years brought in their train. That a glorious destiny awaited them was their sustaining conviction under the fiercest trials. The New Testament anticipates that destiny as the vindication of such disciplinary pain and sorrow. It also teaches that life's tragedies are inexplicable for those who, like yourself, see only their underside and a restricted fragment of that. Even so determined an opponent of Christianity as Nietzsche recognized the refining force of the suffering you deplore when it is nobly endured.

Your problem addresses itself to faith rather than to reason. Yet not all suffering is hopeless. Though cures for a diseased mind are still far to seek, much mental anguish has been traced to its source and its causes removed. This happens daily in ever widening areas. The apostolic vision of a redeemed world emancipated from its apparently hopeless conflicts of flesh and spirit is not so quixotic as it seems to some. Scientific and medical discoveries point increasingly in that direction.

In view of the fact that life's entire scheme is never before us, that what we see of it is at the most but a small part of the whole, that suffering sustained by trust in God's ultimate purposes has produced earth's finest characters, can you not believe that what has been was best for you and your loved one? Christ assures you that the works of God are thus made manifest in what otherwise appear to be useless tortures.

QUESTION.

Williamsport, Pa.

I have been tormented for the greater part of my life by a habit which sometimes makes my life so miserable that I think death will be the only release from it. I have fought against it and implored the aid of God, but it dominates me and so far I have failed. How can I strengthen my purpose and master this horrible sex instinct that deprives me of all happiness?

ANSWER.

The sex instinct is not horrible in itself. Normally conceived, it is a God-given function which invests his creatures with a degree of His creative force. But any man or woman can make a horrible use of it and it then becomes a source of degradation and misery. Like the ancient garden of Eden, it is guarded with a flaming sword. Unfortunately, you have proved this by experience, and since the habit you mention has become dominant it cannot be easily conquered.

Begin your self-recovery by placing the main facts of sex in their correct perspective. If it could be abolished race extinction would soon follow. Hence it is extremely powerful because it is absolutely essential. Apply these facts to your own case. You assert that the eradication of sexual desire in you would be a blessing, since you have allowed it to rob you of your manhood, dethrone your honor and jeopardize your physical being.

If you sincerely crave mastery you can attain it provided you search for it aright. The surest way to exterminate a bad habit is to crowd it out with a good one. They never agree, as you know, and if you persistently practice the good habit it will ultimately stifle the evil one.

Seek therefore to substitute mental and spiritual delights in place of degrading dreams and debaucheries. Consider sex in motherhood and its fruition in childhood. Keep their grace and loveliness before you and remember that strict fidelity to the laws that govern personal hygiene may induct you into legitimate fatherhood. What joys equal those of a parent watching his own life unfold in that of his child? Make it incompatible with your individual value and dignity to be the slave of such desires, otherwise you will fight a losing battle and repeat your catastrophes. Although you consciously seek clean, wholesome manhood, you unconsciously long for the unclean and unwholesome type. Once you firmly resolve to be free of this shameful serfdom to sheer animalism, prayer to God will purify the stream of your natural desires and enable you once more to look the world in the face. May He stand by your side in the battle!

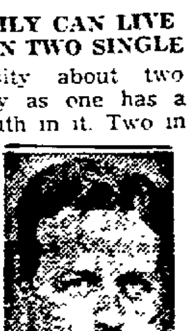
Diet and Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D., Author of "THE HUMAN BODY"

TWO IN A FAMILY CAN LIVE CHEAPER THAN TWO SINGLE

That old falsity about two living as cheaply as one has a little grain of truth in it. Two in one family can live cheaper than two single people apart.



Dr Clendening

In four food plans, all having an adequate diet, but increasing in efficiency as the price increases, it will be noticed that the estimated cost for a family of four is never quite four times the estimate for a single person.

And the more efficient the diet, the greater is the saving when more than one is considered

Thus the cheapest plan estimates 16 8-10 cents a day for the one person, and 67 cents for the family of four

While the most efficient diet estimates 50 cents a day for the one person, and $1 83 a day for the family of four

Most of the housewives with whom I have talked about these plans want to know exactly what articles are bought. In planning them it is not so much exactly the articles, as the classes of articles

An adequate diet can be planned with this distribution of the food dollar

1. Milk and cheese, 25 to 30 cents
2. Fruit and vegetables, 20 to 25 cents
3. Lean meat, fish and eggs 10 cents
4. Bread, flour, cereals, 20 cents.
5. Fats, sugars, accessories, 20 cents.

These five classes of food stuffs must be represented for health's sake. But if cereals—bread, spaghetti, rice—are increased over meat and fresh vegetables—which is feasible and still healthful—the cost is greatly lessened.

Another way of reducing costs is to face monotony. And monotony in foods may not be pleasant, but at least it is not unhealthful.

Thrift in watching the fluctuations of food prices is naturally a great factor. Cabbage prices shift as much as 75 per cent during the year, and potatoes 60 per cent. Eggs have an enormous seasonal variation, but eggs are not necessary; in fact, it might be a good thing to do without them for a while.

Prices are up in a period of inflation, down in a period of prosperity. "The consumer is likely to get the small end of the horn either way," says a prophet of the New Deal, Gove Hambridge. "In prosperous times prices may be so high that his purchasing power does not keep pace with his income. In a depression prices are low, but he has no money to spend. And there is nothing he can do about it—unless he tries to bring a social system in which the interests of the mass of consumers is put before all other interests."

QUESTION.

"Please give the cause of puffs under the eyes on awakening after eight hours' sleep."

ANSWER.

Probably it does not mean anything except the sluggish circulation of middle age. Sometimes it is due to high blood pressure or kidney involvement. A urine test would be advisable. Another cause is trichiniasis.

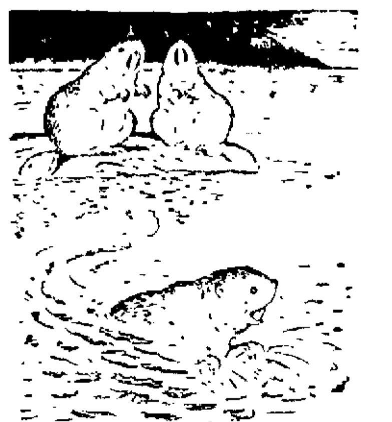
Paddy Says Farewell

Roam where you will, though far or near,
In time the call of home you'll hear.
—Paddy the Beaver.



He Touched Noses With Each And Then Swam Straight Down the Pond.

When Paddy the Beaver gave the alarm signal by slapping the water with his broad tail as he plunged beneath the surface Old Sharptooth did not hesitate a second. He plunged from the end of the dam where he was eating a root. He didn't stop for so much as even a glance around. In this he proved that he had been well trained. Safety first is the law of life in the beaver world and all young beavers are taught to first make sure of it and look for the cause of fright afterward.

It was well for Sharptooth that he had remembered this, for his nose had hardly hit the water when Tufty the Lynx landed on the exact spot where Sharptooth had been sitting. Had he taken time for just one hurried look Tufty would have had him. It was the narrowest escape Sharptooth ever had. But, strange to say, he didn't know it. Not at first anyway. He didn't even know that he was the one who had been in danger. All he knew was that Paddy had given the danger signal and he had heeded it. It wasn't until he came up out in the middle of the pond and found Paddy beside him that he learned what it was all about. He looked back at the dam and just caught a little glimpse of a shadowy form that bounded into the blackest of the Black shadows and disappeared.

Broadtail and Mrs. Broadtail came up to find out what the real danger was, and when Paddy told them the four beavers looked very grave, and, too, they looked a little sheepish. You see, they had been so very sure that no enemy knew where they were and that there was no need for constant watchfulness.

"I think we have learned our lesson, thanks to you," said Broadtail to Paddy. "Had it not been for your timely warning Sharptooth wouldn't be here now."

"Don't mention it," replied Paddy. "You would have done as much for me."

"Of course we would," chorused the others. Then Sharptooth added: "But none of us would have discovered the danger in time, for none of us was on watch for it, as you were. You warned us of being careless because we felt so safe and we thought your warning all foolishness. Now we know better and we will never forget. Tufty the Lynx will never have another chance like that at any of us, nor will any one else if watchfulness will prevent it."

"Well, I'm glad I was on hand and saw the danger in time. I would have hated to go away leaving sorrow where there has been so much happiness," replied Paddy.

"Go away!" cried Broadtail. "Where are you going?"

"Home," replied Paddy simply.

"But why not make your home here with us? We would love to have you," spoke up Mrs. Broadtail.

Paddy shook his head. "It would not be home," he explained. "It is your home, but it wouldn't be mine for I already have a home and it is high time I was getting back there."

"There is still plenty of time; stay a little longer," said Sharptooth.

"No," responded Paddy. "No. I have been having a vacation and now it is time to work. It is time to begin the harvest for winter. I am needed at home."

"But you are needed here. Really you are," said Broadtail.

Paddy shook his head. "No," said he. "You only think I am. But I am needed at home. You are well started for the founding of a new colony and if I have helped a little I am glad. Now my home needs me and I—need my home. To reach it I have a long journey before me. I have stayed longer than I should have, so now I will say good by and good luck."

He touched noses with each and then swam straight down the pond climbed over the dam and started on down stream.

"I wonder if that Lynx scared him away," mused Sharptail.

"No," replied Broadtail, who was a little older. "He isn't the kind to be scared. But that Lynx probably made him think of the folks at home and he became homesick."

And this was just the way it was.

The next story: "Home Again."

By the author of Judith Lane
Marian Gordon
by JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: Marian Gordon, reporter for the Morning Dispatch, just has returned from hearing the jury's "not guilty" which frees William Brown of the charge of accepting a bribe for passing defective work on a new high school building. Now she learns that her schoolmate, the beautiful if tricky Silver Hondon has been granted a Reno divorce from Cliff Hondon, and that Hondon has shot himself. Marian is to go by plane to Reno, to break the news to Silver, and get a story. Marian is explaining to her roommate, Anne.

Chapter Five.
RENO.

"What sort of a chap is Hondon?" asked Anne.

"Fine fellow as far as I know," returned Marian, "a little erratic, maybe. Always had more money than was good for him. Good looking, crew man on the U Varsity. Silver took me to the races one year."

"Think it was his fault she applied for a divorce?"

"Probably, in so far that he'd give her anything she wanted, like all the rest of us. She has the most unholy way of taking the things one loves most and making the giver glad he's giving. I haven't seen her since her wedding, but I understand he spoiled her like everyone else. There, how do you like the new dress?"

Marian had donned a lilac colored angora frock, pulled a beige angora hat over her hair and then slipped into a beige lapin swagger coat.

"Stunning," declared Anne with enthusiasm. "I'm so glad you're getting some sense about clothes. you should take a few tips from this Silver friend of yours. Len's the kind of a fellow every woman's bound to make a try for, and you're going to have to learn you can't always depend upon your hair and eyes to get you by. You are too practical, you and your plain tailored clothes."

"That from you," chided Marian, "you and your uniforms."

"But my Albert's a doctor and I'm only a nurse. Besides I have dimples. With those I could save a man's life and never be given any credit for it. There's a horn....and the buzzer. Here are your gloves ....need any cash?" Anne followed her to the door. "Oh, and Ian, if Hondon holds his own, he'll be under my care, they won't take a chance on moving him tonight."

Marian found the cab at the curb, Estes and his camera inside. "And just as I pulled the quilt up to my chin," he was lamenting, "brr went the telephone."

"You were lucky," laughed Marian, stowing her bag alongside his camera. "My chin hasn't seen a quilt for so long, it would probably think it was an eclipse of the moon."

As the cab careened around the corner Estes spoke. "Say Ian, what's this yarn about, I thought this marriage was one of those made-in-Heaven affairs."

"There's A Guy Trying To Make the Ship!"

"It was, but they didn't keep it there and this hemisphere is very rough on marital unions."

"Another woman?"

"I don't think Cliff knew there were other women."

"Another man, then?"

"N-no," she paused as the cab shot into the estuary tube and wheeled along the floor of the bay so fast the signal lights ran into a single flare of red, blue and green. "No," she repeated as they came out on the island, "people are divorced for other reasons."

"Not really," chortled Estes. "If they are us newsmen don't hear about them."

The cab skimmed the tree-lined avenue crossed a bridge and scurried along a dyke that rimmed the bay-shore. To the left the airport buildings blazed like a fiesta city and in the field, small ships arose and settled like queer species of night-flying moths.

They pulled up before the terminal, rushed into the building where their tickets awaited them, then out onto the field where the tri-motor express waited in the tremulous glow of flood lights.

Marian felt a pulse of excitement beat in her throat. The sheer beauty of the silver ship with its widespread wings the roar of power from the testing motors, erased the shabby scene of the court room and the later news of the tragedy from her mind.

She settled back into the comfortable seat, adjusted her feet for ease on the upward swing of the ship, heard the sharp slam of the cabin door, saw the co-pilot join the pilot in the control cabin. She accepted cotton for her ears from the trim stewardess in olive drab, then looked about her.

Estes was leaning forward, gazing past her towards the blaze of terminal lights—"Look," he cried, "there's a guy trying to make the ship."

Marian turned quickly just in time to see a field attendant clutch the coat of a man who had darted out of the building into the danger zone.

She had a swift vision of his face as they taxied along the runway. The man was Lionel Casad.

The air field and the gesticulating man seemed to drop away from the plane as Marian pressed her face to the cabin window. Her

Stocks Yield Some Of Their Recent Gains Under Profit-Taking As Inflation Talk Subsides

Closing Tone In Equities Is Easy

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—(AP)—The inflationary balloon appeared to have been at least partially deflated today and stocks and staples yielded some of their recent gains under speculative weekend profit taking. Equity trading, however, dwindled appreciably on the decline, transfers in the brief session approximating only 385,000 shares. The close was easy.

With the administration at Washington indicating that no monetary move was being contemplated at this time, despite the murmurings from the capital on Thursday, scattered realizing on equities bought under the revival of inflationary psychology was the rule. Some stocks were resistant, though, and others did not give a great deal of ground. Aside from the waning of inflationary sentiment, most market commentators had been predicting a temporary technical reaction.

Grains dropped 1 to around 2 cents a bushel and cotton also sagged. Foreign exchanges also pointed substantially lower. On the other hand, bonds exhibited a firm tone, with U. S. governments in demand.

Shares of Auburn Automobile ignored the rest of the market and got up about 2 points, while Continental Can, Goodyear and Liggett & Myers B steadied. Those off fractionally to a point or more included U. S. Smelting, American Telephone, American Can, Consolidated Gas, Western Union, U. S. Steel General Motors, Chrysler, Standard Oils of California and New Jersey, Du Pont, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting and Schenley.

Heaviness of the oils was attributed partly to the gasoline price war which is now under way. McLellan Stores preferred lost 2 points and the common was down a fraction following advices that the securities and exchange commission was investigating the recent activity in the issues of this company which is in receivership.

While the president at his press conference yesterday was reported to have "laughed off conflicting reports that further devaluation of the dollar or some other inflationary step was in progress," market observers pointed out that this did not change the situation so far as a possible future depreciation of the monetary unit is concerned.

At the same time, financial circles voiced the opinion that, in view of the treasury's new call for the redemption on April 15, next, of an additional block of $1,870,000,000 of fourth Liberty 4¼s, it was not probable that in the meantime any radical currency action would be taken.

Although many traders have based their operations in stocks and commodities upon the theory that drastic inflation is a foregone conclusion, others have been proceeding very cautiously on the belief that dollar manipulation will not be a bullish factor in the long run and that a steady improvement in both equities and commodities probably would follow currency stabilization.

SOME MARKETS CLOSED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—(AP)—Continuing the Columbus day holiday, the Commodity Exchange, Inc., which includes the rubber, hide, tin, lead, copper and zinc markets, and the commerce, sugar and cocoa exchanges remained closed today.

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—(AP)—

COTTON—An early decline in cotton was followed by partial rallies today, but after selling up from 12.31 to 12.39 for December the market eased again under further liquidation and southern selling. December declined to 12.30 and closed at 12.32 with the general market closing steady at net declines of 5 to 15 points.

Chicago Produce.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 13—(AP)—

Butter was firm in trade today. Eggs were steady and poultry was quiet.

Uncertainty still prevails in the butter market. Virtually all handlers have become government minded and consequently anything the government might do will readily reflect itself in butter market trends.

Government acceptance of bids on 1,000,000 pounds last week seemed to stimulate a little effort but the [illegible] was short lived. However the persistent report of further large purchases substantiated by published bids tended to change the trend.

Production is steadily maintained in all parts of the country. Fall weather has resulted in pasture growth and grass feed is fairly plentiful. Consequently it is not believed that fresh production will suffer so long as weather conditions remain ideal.

Wheat and Corn Prices Take Skid

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 13—(AP)—Almost complete reversal of bullish sentiment among grain traders today accompanied pronounced setbacks of Liverpool and Winnipeg wheat quotations, with decided lessening of inflation talk.

All wheat futures in Chicago dipped at times to below $1.00 a bushel. Rallies, however, were in progress during the late dealings.

Wheat closed nervous, 1⅜ to 2⅜ cents under Thursday's finish, December new $1.00⅝@¾. Corn 1 to 1½ cents down, December new 75⅝@¾c. Oats ¾ to 1½ cents off, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 15 cents.

Extreme weakness of wheat quotations at Liverpool today led to sharp early downturns of grain prices here. Conflicting reports from Washington as to prospective new steps toward inflation were an additional unsettling factor. Opening 1 cent to 2⅞ cents lower, December new $1.00⅝@1.01. Chicago wheat afterward fluctuated rapidly within the initial range. Corn started ⅝ to 1 cent off. December new 76@76¼c, and then steadied.

Breaks in Liverpool wheat prices were attributed largely to the fact that the Liverpool market had shown seven consecutive advances. Furthermore, authoritative estimates were received indicating that the new wheat crop of western Australia would be 12,000,000 bushels over previous figures. There were also advices of favorable weather for wheat crops in Argentina as well as in Australia.

Forecasts of showers in Kansas and apparent likelihood of some moisture for other parts of winter wheat territory needing relief from drouth were a handicap to friends of higher prices. Good buying, though, on the part of commission houses developed at around $1.00 for May wheat and 78 cents for May corn. On the other hand, moderate rallies that ensued were followed by increased pressure to sell. Corn and oats were relatively firmer than wheat, with traders giving heed to statements that corn supplies for the year are so much below ordinary requirements as to be alarming.

Provisions went lower with hog values and with grains.

About mid-session, wheat was 1¾ to 2⅜ cents down, compared with Thursday's finish, and corn was 1¼ to 1½ cents off.

Corn receipts in Chicago today were 144 cars, a week ago 97, and a year ago 192.

Grain Notes

CHICAGO, Oct. 13—(AP)—Government reports indicate the grain crops in Iowa and Illinois will be the smallest in years. The estimate for feed grains and hay in Illinois was reported to be the smallest on record, with the indicated yield of corn — 151,000,000 bushels—the lowest since 1870. Government experts estimated the oats crop would be the smallest in 58 years. Farmers were said to still be holding 28 per cent of this crop. Most of the corn sealed in cribs on Illinois farms under the government corn-hog program has either been consumed on the farms or sold.

The Iowa corn yield was estimated at 248,000,000 bushels, which is 44 per cent of the 1933 crop and 48 per cent of the 10-year average yield for the state. Since 1874 the production has fallen below 300,000,000 bushels only three times. Most counties in southern Iowa, which was hard hit by drouth and chinch bugs will have to import corn from other regions. The average yield in many of the counties will be only two or three bushels per acre. The highest average yields in northeastern Iowa were estimated at 45 bushels an acre.

Favorable weather has made it possible to push threshing toward completion in the northern part of the Canadian prairie provinces, and hedging sales at Winnipeg yesterday were not offset by buying against export sales as was the case earlier in the week. Wheat was lower at Winnipeg as a result of weakness in foreign markets.

NEW YORK BOND REVIEW.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—(AP)—Being responsive to a further rise in U. S. governments rather than the heavy tone of stocks, the bond market gave a fairly good account of itself today.

A few corporate issues, notably secondary rails, were pushed backward a point or so, but most of the changes were on the up side.

Announcement of the treasury's call for redemption on April 15 of an additional block of $1,870,000,000 fourth Liberty 4¼s was not wholly unexpected, but nevertheless the news prompted a lively buying movement in the uncalled bonds, resulting in a gain of ½ point to 104.4.

One or two of the Treasury issues lost a little ground, but the major part of the federal list improved from 2-32nds to 11-32nds of a point. Home Loan and Federal Farm Mortgage issues were especially firm. Treasury 3s of 1951-55 rose 11-32nds and the 3s of 1946-48 10-32nds to 99.31 for each issue.

Prime corporate loans had a good tone. Santa Fe 4s were fractionally higher at 103 and Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s climbed half a point to 109½. Other gainers included Great Northern 4½s, New York Central 5s, North American 5s and Pennsylvania general 4½s. Southern Pacific 4½s eased about a point.

The feature of the foreign list was a sharp advance in German government 7s on the Washington announcement that holders would receive 75 per cent of the interest payment due on Monday. The 7s, or Dawes issue, pushed up 2 points to 37½. The 5½s at 26⅞ were a shade below the previous final.

NEW YORK CURB REVIEW.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—(AP)—Prices on the curb exchange drifted quietly lower today under week-end profit taking and technical readjustments following the substantial upturn in the last two days. Alcohols and a few merchandising shares were exceptions and advanced minor fractions. Trading was quiet.

Utilities were the most active issues and leaders of that group showed some resistance to the downward trend after selling lower in the first few minutes of trading. American Gas, Electric Bond & Share and Niagara Hudson had sufficient support to hold losses to around ⅛ to ¼ of a point, while American Super Power held unchanged after a fairly large turnover. Other shares losing fractionally included Teck Hughes, Sherwin Williams, National Bellas Hess and American Cyanamid "B." Canadian Industrial Alcohol "B" advanced a point and Hiram Walker improved a minor fraction. Pioneer Gold and Swift Internacionale were among others showing slight advances. Oil stocks were inactive and showed no important change.

BOY RETURNS TO TAKE THRONE OF HIS DEAD FATHER

Belgrade Gives 11-Year-Old Peter II Unprecedented Welcome.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press).

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 13—A scene of unprecedented popular acclamation greeted the child-king Peter as he arrived today to take the throne of his assassinated father.

Peter arrived at 9 a. m., accompanied by the widowed queen and her mother, Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania.

Three weeks ago the 11-year-old Peter left here as a school boy on his way to England to be educated. Today he returned a king.

As the widowed queen was assisted from the train with her mother on one side and the little king manfully supporting her on the other, a murmur of pity rose from the crowd, for the peasants of Yugoslavia who call her "our little mother" hold a deep affection for her.

When members of the regency including Prince Paul, cousin of the late king, cabinet ministers and members of parliament had accorded the royal family the official welcome, Peter, sitting between two tragic-visaged queens was driven in a closed automobile to the palace.

Waves to Children.

On the way to the palace the king's mother and grandmother wept unrestrainedly at the manifestations. Peter seeing along the royal route long lines of Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts of which he is the commander, waved to the children who cheered him wildly.

At the palace Peter rushed to his two younger brothers, threw his arms around them and kissed them repeatedly. Tomislav, 6, who had not been told of his father's tragic death at Marseille, asked, "But Peter, where is Papa?"

"Oh, brother, he's gone on a long journey," Peter replied soothingly, attempting at the same time to restrain his tears.

Amazing precautions were taken by the police and the army to prevent a repetition of the Marseille tragedy. Complete order continues throughout the country.

"Protective" Diet Recommended By Famed Physician In Talk Here

A model "protective" diet was recommended by Dr. Clifford J. Barborka, of Chicago, personal physician of Knute Rockne, Jack Dempsey and Babe Ruth, when he spoke to the Lincoln district dental society Friday night. His foundation diet for a day's food:

One pint milk; one egg; three servings vegetables; three servings fruits; two or three ounces of meat, fish or fowl; one and one-half tablespoons butter.

"This amount of food contains about 900 calories," Dr. Barborka explained," and includes vitamins, minerals, and all the necessary elements to sustain a normal individual for a day. Of course individual energy demands might modify the list according to the individual needs, but in general this is a good protective diet."

The speaker severely scored various forms of "diet quackeries" charging that some of them were harmful rather than beneficial.

Dr. Barborka declared that sugar was over-rated as a producer of energy. "There is altogether too much sugar consumed in this country," he said. "It is only a cheap form of energy but in the past 60 years the per capita consumption has jumped from 8 pounds to 38 pounds. That's too much.'

The speaker was introduced by Prof. Victor Vraz of the university, and a friend of Dr. Barborka at Northwestern university. Dr. Barborka was formerly with the Mayo clinic at Rochester.

Dr. R. C. Groom, president of the dental society was in charge of the dinner meeting, held at the Lincoln hotel.

BOY VICTIM OF CHILDISH PLAY WITH HIS CHUMS

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. 13—(AP)—Seven-year-old John Feeney, whose body was found in a trunk in a squatter's shack, was the victim of too much realism in a game of "cops and robbers."

From his 4-year-old brother and two 6-year-old playmates, police have learned how John met his death during their childish play. The children will not be prosecuted, authorities said.

They captured John, took him to the shack and tied him with an old piece of rope around his neck, arms and legs.

At last they tired of play and decided to go home. They freed John but he fell to the floor. They became frightened, so they shoved his body into a trunk and went home.

LAMSON TO GET ANOTHER TRIAL

California Court Says He Was Convicted on 'Mere Suspicion.'

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13—(AP)—The California Supreme court today granted David A. Lamson, former Stanford Press executive, a new trial for murder of his wife, Allene, for which he had been convicted and sentenced to hang.

The Supreme court declared evidence produced in the trial at St. Jose was no stronger than mere suspicion.

"It is better that a guilty man escape than to condemn to death one who may be innocent," the ruling said.

"Every statement of the defendant capable of verification tends to support his claims. It is true he may be guilty but the evidence thereof is no stronger than mere suspicion."

"A majority of the justices of this court feels that Lamson is guilty, but the state failed to prove it," said Chief Justice William H. Waste in a statement.

GREEN RENAMED LABOR CHIEFTAIN

A.F.L. Will Fight For Million New Members and 30-Hour Week.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor's fight for a million more members and the 30-hour week will be carried into 1935 under the leadership of William Green, heading an executive council increased to almost double its size.

All old officers were re-elected to the enlarged controlling body as the annual convention closed last night after delivering a burning criticism of S. Clay Williams, new member of the NRA board.

Approving an enlargement of the executive council by the largest roll call majority of the convention, the delegates unanimously elected John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers and sponsor of the expansion, as one of their seven new vice presidents.

Eight vice presidents and three ex-officio members comprised the old administrative body.

A Busy Session.

Describing the 54th convention as one of the most important in history of the A. F. of L., President Green closed the meeting with the observation it had transacted more business than any previous convention in the last ten years.

"We are united in purpose," he concluded, "and we will make the actions of this convention the vital, living practices of the executive council in the coming year."

The resolution criticizing the appointment of Williams to the NRA board charged he is "opposed to trade unions and to collective bargaining as set forth in Sections 7A and B in the NRA." It asks President Roosevelt to make an impartial investigation of Williams' "hostile attitude" toward labor.

GERMANY TO END ITS TRADE PACT WITH AMERICA

Little Prospect of Replacing Most-Favored Commercial Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—(INS)—Germany today served notice upon the United States of its intention to terminate one year hence the most-favored nation treaty with this country.

German Ambassador Hans Luther called on Undersecretary of State Phillips and notified him that the German government had decided to terminate the most-favored nation treaty because it conflicted with the bilateral trade agreements which Germany is concluding with other countries.

He proposed conclusion of a new trade treaty eliminating the unconditional most-favored nation clause.

The provisions of the existing most-favored treaty with Germany signed in October 1925, provide that the treaty remains in force indefinitely after October 14, 1935, subject to twelve months' advance notice of termination.

No Hope of New Treaty.

The position of the German government, as outlined by Ambassador Luther, is that Germany has been forced to enter special agreements with other countries to obtain needed raw materials.

In order to avoid violation of the most-favored nation treaty, Germany considers it advisable to terminate the treaty.

In commenting on Germany's action, Phillips later intimated that he gave Ambassador Luther no hope that this government would enter negotiations in the near future for a new commercial agreement.

Phillips said that the policy of the United States was that the most-favored nation treaty represented the most advantageous course for this government to follow in its trade relations with the rest of the world.

AAA WILL LET FARMERS RULE

Almost Complete Decentralization of Farm Program Forecast.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—(AP)—Home rule for the farmer is an AAA aim for 1935.

Almost complete decentralization of the agricultural administration was forecast in official circles today as leaders prepared their third major drive to boost farm purchasing power and bring production into line with domestic consumption.

Officials acknowledged their desire to "get off the hot seat" of criticism. So in the wheat, cotton, corn-hog and tobacco programs for next year farmers—through their country production control associations, community gatherings and state committees—will be given the responsibility of administering all but general policies.

Officials of the wheat section stressed the success of the 1934 reduction program and the manner in which farmers took care of their own problems. This indicated, they said, that the growers can handle practically the entire situation next year.

By allowing farmers to express their opinion as to future action, to recommend details of programs and to administer them, leaders feel that much criticism can be met at the source and any taint of bureaucracy removed.

Lincoln had 134 wholesale establishments which employed 1,220 men and women on a full-time basis and reported a total payroll of $1,657,000 of which $56,000 was paid to part-time employes. They carried stocks of merchandise which at the end of the year amounted to $3,822,000.

Radium sells at a price of about $70 per milligram, which is 1-28,000 of an ounce. A pound of it would cost considerably more than $30,000,000. Yet, strange as it seems, radium is constantly changing to something else—and eventually it turns into common lead.

Radium is the fifth in a series of disintegrating substances called the uranium-radium-lead series. There are 10 members in the series, each of which (except for the first and last) is the product of one substance and the parent of still another. For example, the series is headed by uranium, a hard white metal used in china painting and photography. In time this metal undergoes three changes, then becomes ionium. Ionium then slowly changes into radon, a gas, which undergoes several other changes and eventually becomes lead.

The rate of change is very slow, however. Radium disintegrates at the rate of one part in 2250 parts each year. That is to say, if you had a milligram of radium it would take 1,600 years for half of it to disintegrate. Then another 1,600 years would be required for half of the half-milligram you have left to disappear. At the end of 6,400 years you would still have 1-16 left.

Babe Ruth's home run after the third strike occurred in the fourth game of the 1928 series when Sherdel pitched a quick ball without winding up. The ball split the plate, and it caught the Babe napping. After much debate among players and spectators alike the umpire ruled it an illegal delivery. Babe smacked the next ball over the fence.

Marian Gordon

first reaction upon recognizing Lon Casad, was amazement that she had forgotten her engagement with him the following evening. She hadn't even left word that she wouldn't be there.

And then came wonder at his presence on the airfield. Had he received a call from home and was flying east? But no he would have gone south to Los Angeles, first, then east. But why...and how...she looked down as though she might be able to find some answer to her bewildered questioning in the dark waters of the bay, girdled by the lights of the cities that rimmed its shores.

She would telephone Anne as soon as she had finished with her assignment. Anne would know. Lon was staying with Doctor Steele.

The light at the head of the cabin which had illuminated "No Smoking" and "Adjust your safety belts, please" was out, and with it, the air of strain among the passengers. The stewardess was passing cigarettes and here and there red tips glowed like circled embers against the midnight hue of the windows.

She must forget Lon and think of Silver and of the ordeal ahead of her in breaeking the news to her. Bowen had seemed to think knowing her would make it easier. It wasn't. Friendship, disillusioned at it was on Marian's part, placed a definite restraint upon her.

Roberts, acting director of the shelterbelt project, returned to Lincoln Saturday morning after a conference of several days with Raphael Zon, director of the Lake State experiment station at St. Paul. Conferences on personnel were held and Roberts announced he would be prepared to hold a preliminary working conference here in the very near future.

With the offices of the shelterbelt extending over most of the fourth floor of the Sharp building, the staff was slowly being completed and groundwork being laid. Alva A. Simpson, chief of lands, and David S. Olson, chief of planting and nurseries, will be back during the middle of next week from a week's preliminary survey of the ground in Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska.

Members of the executive staff who have already been named are:

Paul H. Roberts, acting director.
William H. Ihlanfeldt, fiscal agent.
William Murray, deputy fiscal agent.
R. E. Clark, chief of operations.
Alva A. Simpson, chief of lands.
David S. Olson, chief of planting and nurseries.
Mr. Brothers, assistant to the solicitor.
E. D. Cochran, public relations.
E. A. Hays, soil classification expert.

New AAA Service Will Advise Farmers Where Feed Can Be Obtained

A service through which farmers in drouth areas will be advised where they can best purchase winter feeds is being formulated by the administration. A special representative from Washington, Sherwood Jones, was in conference with state AAA officials Saturday preliminary to making a field inspection of Nebraska needs and supply sources. The new service will be made available through the Federal Livestock agency at Kansas City, Mo., Jones said.

Jones specifically pointed out that the agency was not for the purpose of buying and giving feed to farmers but would advise them where feed could be bought at the least price and shipping costs. "We are making a survey of available feed supplies in the United States, Jones said. "We are considering the total needs of the drouth area and the freight rates from different sources of supply to the different sources of demand and the information will be furnished the farmer at without cost to him and we will be glad to co-operate with farmers in any way possible."

Former Husker Grid Player Loses Shirt To Auto Pilferers

OMAHA, Oct. 13 — (AP) — Thomas R. Nelson, who in 1905 and 1906 played football with the University of Nebraska, literally "lost his shirt" here last night.

Along with the shirt went $300 worth of other clothing that Nelson, now an attorney at Rapid City, S. D., had in his parked car. He was en route from Chicago to Lincoln to see the Iowa-Nebraska game.

In Chicago Nelson became the first person to get past the guards at the Insull trial without a pass.

"When they asked for my pass I just gave them my card and they let me by," he said.

The card identifies Nelson in an essay of about 500 words and by the time the doorkeeper had read it Nelson had reached the side of Federal Judge Wilkerson and obtained the right to sit at the defense counsel's table beside Mr. Insull.

"I told him I was an attorney, and he agreed that I had the right to sit inside the railing. Any lawyer has that right," said Nelson.

Pitt Plots Revenge On Trojan Team for Rose Bowl Defeats

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 13—(INS)—Built up even beyond its undoubted and outstanding merit by a tale of continuous frivol and frolic in Hollywood, the great meeting of the day in football was to take place in the presence of 60,000 this afternoon with a grim, hard-pan Pittsburgh team on one side and, on the other, the supposedly decadent Southern California outfit, charged with having done its training with a blonde on either arm. That isn't a charge; it's generally an exaggeration, but the Trojans, apparently outraged, have been at considerable pains to deny it.

Pitt Plots Revenge.

Nevertheless, the Trojans lost, 19 to 0, to Washington State last week, greatly to their shock and chagrin, and, according to the 3-2 odds here this morning, were due for general landscaping job by the sons of track-walkers, foremen, green grocers and other society leaders here. Their idea of Hollywood, it seems, is that it sits around till all hours on tiger skins sniffing idly at orchids.

They resent the orchids. After all, there is a limit to everything They didn't so greatly mind being beaten before in California, when these Trojans were playing great big, homely, foot-on-the-face football. But no dot-and-dash with an orchid in his hand is going to do it now—or so they aver.

By No Means Strangers.

These teams, in other words, are not total strangers. Twice Pitt has gone to California to take the grandfather of all beatings in the Rose Bowl; what happened, in fact, was enough to make the ghosts of all track-walkers arise and begin their endless pacings all over again. But they are patient here in this hard coal district. They can wait and see the idea is that, with great freshman replacements to support Hartwig at one guard, Shotwell at center and Weinstock and Weisenbaugh in the backfield, the great hour is very near.

They felt that way, in fact, before they even learned of the blight that Hollywood had cast upon the institution of Trojan football. They're sure of it now.

But I'm not. I'm impressed, no end, with the potentialities of Cotton Warburton, 148 pounds of jackrabbit, who couldn't be stopped last year and shouldn't be too completely impeded today. He just doesn't seem like a gentleman who can spend two weekends wandering back and forth behind the line of scrimmage.

Trojan Line Doubtful.

Of course, that's U. S. C.'s weakness—the line of scrimmage. Usually, its strength, it seems to have come up with very little this year, although I'm prepared to believe that only when I see it today. The tip I got early this fall was that U. S. C. thought it was better than last year.

Perhaps that's the trouble. Thinking, I've always felt, it very bad for athletes. The strain usually is too great.

However, U. S. C. also carries the advantage of psychology, just as a Yale crew of 12 years ago was made famous by a chance remark. It was accused of lacking courage by Guy Nickalls, its English coach who had been curtly dismissed before the big race. In trying to make a liar out of Nickalls, it made an awful bum out of Harvard.

Wood Makes Pace In Kentucky Open

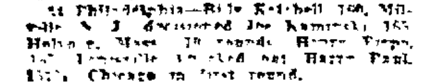
LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 13—(INS)—The field was chasing Craig Wood today in the 18-hole second round of the $5,000 Louisville open golf tourney. Blazing down the fairways which he helped to lay out when he was pro here 10 years ago, Wood shot a spectacular 68—four under par—in the first round to take a commanding position at the outset of the three-day competition.

Birdies on the first two holes started Wood on his brilliant shooting spree, and he added two more later. Every other hole he made in perfect par.

The dash of the Deal, N. J., star dimmed the hopes of his rival P. G. A. teammates, none of whom could better par. Captain Paul Runyan and Leo Diegel took 74, Ky Laffoon 75 and Denny Shute 76

Right on Wood's heels as the second day's play began were "Jug" McSpaden of Kansas City, and Mortie Dutra of Royal Oak, Mich., with 70. Three shot 71—Al Watrous of Birmingham, Mich., Jack Patroni of New York, and Tony Manero of High Point, N. C.

All posting totals of 83 or less qualified for play today. The final round, 36 holes, will be shot Sunday.



At Philadelphia—Billy Ketchell, 160, Millville, N. J., [illegible] Joe Kaminski, 165, Holyoke, Mass., 10 rounds. Henry Firpo, 147, Louisville, knocked out Harry Paul, [illegible], Chicago, in first round.

At San Diego, Calif.—Hank Hankinson, [illegible], San Diego, stopped Gene Garner, [illegible], Los Angeles, in second round.

At Hollywood—[illegible] Manila, featherweight, [illegible] Hereford, Los Angeles, 10 rounds.

SCHMIDT PILOTS TEAM TO URBANA

Former Husker Escorts His Ohio Buckeyes To Scene of Battle.

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 13—(INS)—Another of those wild, hair raising football thrillers which have made Ohio State-Illinois a tradition among Big Ten rivalries was in prospect for this afternoon when these two old enemies met for the twenty-third time in the annual home-coming game at Memorial stadium.

It was a gala affair for this college town. Not only was it the home-coming game, but it also was a special affair in honor of Harold "Red" Grange, most famous star of Western conference annals.

Approximately 35,000 spectators were expected to witness this afternoon's battle.

It was an important game for both teams, too, since defeat would virtually end title hopes before they even sprouted, while victory, on the other hand, would place the successful eleven well on the way to a high rank in the final standing

Buckeyes Confident.

Ohio State came here under the guidance of its new coach, Francis Schmidt, making his first start against an Illinois team. The Buckeyes, outweighing Bob Zuppke's Illini, were filled with confidence because of their slashing 33 to 0 victory over Indiana last week.

Although the rest of the Illini squad was in good physical condition, there was cause for concern over Jack Beynon, quarterback and one of the best passers in the conference. Beynon's right shoulder is lame and may limit his activities in today's game, particularly his passing.

LINCOLN BOWS TO SIOUX CITY HIGH

Red and Black On Losing End In Combat With Iowa Youths.

Getting a powerful offense into action, after a slow start in the first half, the Sioux City Central grid eleven pounded out a 26 to 14 decision over Lincoln high on the Oval Friday afternoon. All six touchdowns were scored by Rohrig, Red and Black halfback, and Jack Kennedy, invading halfback flash.

Lincoln's first break came early in the first quarter when a punt of Rohrig's was downed on Central's one-yard line and Hemphill's punt out of danger was returned to the three-yard stripe by Bud Cather. Rohrig skirted his own right end for the counter and Schwartzkopf added the point from placement.

A few minutes later Sioux City was placed in a scoring position when an exchange of punts gave the Iowans possession in midfield. A long pass, Kennedy to Schlicting advanced the ball to Lincoln's 28-yard line. Funk spun through the line to the 15 Kennedy and Funk crashed through to the three and Kennedy went over his own right guard for the score Mangold tied the score with a perfect place kick.

The Little Maroons drove for their second touchdown with the opening of the second quarter Hemphill's twisting run from his own 45 to Lincoln's 30 launching the march Kennedy cashed around end to Lincoln's 10, Funk plunged to the four and Kennedy went over on a power play through center. A bad pass from center ruined Mangold's attempted placekick.

The Red and Black eleven retaliated on the ensuing kickoff when Cather and Rohrig advanced past midfield on quick dashes off tackle. Mason tossed a forward pass to Dean, who back-passed to Mayne as he fell, and a subsequent sprint off tackle by Rohrig placed the ball on Central's 17-yard line Cather plunged for 10 yards and three plays later Rohrig went over the line through his own left tackle Schwartzkopf again counted from placement.

Centralites Pound at Center.

As the second half opened, Central showed a power attack through the center sector that would not be denied, and the visitors marched the third quarter kickoff from their own 28-yard line to Lincoln's eight on five consecutive first downs through the middle of the line. The attack momentarily bogged down, but Huff blocked Rohrig's punt out of danger and Mangold set the pins for another Central score by covering the ball on the Red and Black 15 as the third period ended

Kennedy was hurt during the quick drive to the goal but remained in the game and scored two plays after the blocked punt Mangold's attempted placekick was wide

The last quarter progressed with the locals on the defensive most of the time and throwing passes wildly when they did get the ball Late in the period Masey Central tackle blocked a pass of Mason's and galloped to Lincoln's 10-yard line with the ball before he was pulled down Two plays later Kennedy crashed over guard for the score and Funk punged for the extra point.

The offensive duel waged by the two halfbacks Rohrig and Kennedy took the spotlight as far as individual performances were concerned, with Cather rating mention by virtue of his defensive play. Central found a weak spot in the Baller forward wall at center and the guards, and the locals ran the Little Maroon ends almost at will.

HEAVIES TO MIX IN FLORIDA RING

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—(AP)—It appears now as if the next big heavyweight fight to pick an opponent for Champion Max Baer will be fought in Miami, Fla., between either Steve Hamas or Art Lasky and Max Schmeling, the former titleholder from Germany.

Jimmy Johnston, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, and Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, announced yesterday that Schmeling is under contract to meet either Hamas or Lasky in February, the articles having been signed on the afternoon of the fight between the last two named. As Hamas gained the somewhat questionable decision, the former Penn State football player is expected to get first call.

Schmeling is slated to arrive in New York the first week in January to start training. Feb. 28 has been tentatively set as the date.

Frisch Frowns On Tour by Dean Boys

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 13—(AP)—The famous Jerome "Dizzy" Dean made a benefit appearance at an exhibition baseball game attended by 14,000 persons here last night.

"Dizzy" and his none-the-less famous brother, Paul, pitched two innings each for an all-star team, but lost, 7 to 0, to the Monarchs, a Kansas City negro nine Each pitcher allowed one run.

Among the spectators was Frank Frisch, manager of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals. Frisch regards the post-season junket tour of his star hurlers as unwise.

BIG 10 FOOTBALL IN WESTERN TEST

Hanley Team Strays Far From Home to Joust With Stanford.

STANFORD STADIUM, Palo Alto, Cal., Oct. 13—(INS)—Big Ten football, held to be the superior brand by many critics, will be compared with the Pacific coast kind here this afternoon when Dick Hanley's Northwestern Wildcats clash with the Stanford university Redskins in this region's intersectional battle of the season.

Although "Tiny" Thornhill's big Stanford eleven was rated a two to one favorite, local gridiron experts conceded there was a "splendid chance for an upset." The Wildcats, who arrived here two days ago, have been highly impressive in local workouts.

An important question to be decided in today's tilt is: "Can Stanford go without Bobby Grayson, it's outstanding backfield ace?"

Grayson, injured two weeks ago, is not slated to play, although he will be in uniform and ready for some action, if the invaders get off to a lead.

"Bones" Hamilton, outstanding Stanford blocking back, was scheduled to assume Grayson's ball-carrying duties.

Hanley Eager for Upset.

Head, a transfer from San Mateo junior college, who did splendid work for the Stanford against Oregon State last week, also was expected to perform a big share of ball-lugging.

Hanley, eager to spring an upset and thus prove his bold assertion that "Big Ten football is the best in the country," planned to bewilder the Redskins with a clever aerial game built around Potter, star Wildcat backfield performer.

If the game is close, the prize toe of "Monk" Moscrip, stellar Stanford end, may play a vital part in the final score. Moscrip is considered one of the best placekickers on the coast, being a pupil of Murray Cuddeback, Thornhall's scout famed place-kicker. Should Stanford—which is undefeated, but tied by Santa Clara in an early season game—get over Northwestern, it will be firmly established as an outstanding contender for the Pacific Coast conference championship.

Stagg's Men Play Bears.

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 13—(INS)—Alonzo Amos Stagg, "football's grand old man," leads his college of the Pacific Tigers on the field here this afternoon to battle the University of California Golden Bears.

With short-enders knocking over the favorites in rapid succession on the Pacific coast this season, Bear rooters were in certain as to the outcome of the contest, although Bill Ingram, California coach, originally booked the game as a "breather." The Bears however, were listed as a two- to one favorite.

Cougars at Spokane.

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 13—(INS)—The Cougars of Washington State college, flushed with victory over the Trojans of U. S. C. at Los Angeles last Saturday, are not going to hold anything back when the clash with Gonzaga university here this afternoon. Because of the sudden national prominence achieved by the boys from Pullman, the Gonzaga stadium will be packed today to watch Gonzaga in an effort to be a "David" against a "Goliath."

Oregon Takes On Washington.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 13—(INS)—A crowd of 32,000 football fanatics with divergent views as to the prowess of Oregon and Washington university football teams was scheduled to assemble here this afternoon in Multnomah civic stadium and wait for a verdict.

Washington fans, 10,000 strong aim to throw off Oregon's six-year yoke of scoreless tyranny and make Oct. 13 a memorable day. The odds, holding even, agree anything can happen.

CRETE RALLIES TO BEAT TIGERS

Kleinmen Forge Ahead In Last Period and Win By 14-6 Score.

HASTINGS, Neb., Oct. 12—A fourth-quarter rally that netted a touchdown and a safety enabled Crete high school to move ahead a notch in its quest for the mythical prep school football title, defeating Hastings here yesterday, 14 to 6.

Taking a short punt on the 16-yard line in the final period the Cardinals drove to a counter DePoyster going over from the six-yard line to break a 6 to 6 tie

The Klein eleven got away to a good start marching the length of the field for a touchdown in the initial period but Hastings held the upper hand in the next two quarters, a pass from Stickles to Woolery giving the Tigers a touchdown the first minute in the fourth period to tie the score at 6-all

DePoyster's fourth-period counter was followed by an automatic safety when Trupp Hastings stepped out of the end zone.

The plunging of DePoyster and the passing of Stickles along with Galloway's return of punts featured the play.

DAVID CITY DOWNS SEWARD.

DAVID CITY, Neb., Oct. 13—Coach Kenneth Kellough's undefeated David City high football team was another stride nearer a perfect season today as the result of an impressive 18-0 victory over Seward. The Seward eleven previously was undefeated and included in its record a scoreless tie at York

The line play of Center Coons and Tackles Smith and Freschauf and the backfield work of Kucera stood out for David City Ogesby looked the best for Seward

David City blocked a punt in the first few minutes of play and soon shot Kucera across for the touchdown Thomas scored in the second quarter and Kucera again in the third period

FAIRENO REPEATS ON EASTERN OVAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—(AP)—William Woodward's Faireno apparently is back into the form that carried him to the three-year-old turf title two years ago.

Idle last year because of leg trouble, the five-year old son of Chatterton was slow in hitting his stride this year. He had won only two races in 21 starts before facing the barrier in the Havre De Grace Handicap two weeks ago. He came through with a surprise victory, however, beating the highly regarded Discovery.

Yesterday he breezed to his second straight victory in accounting for the $7,500 Rochambeau Handicap at Narragansett and ran his earnings for the year to $25,185.

PLAINSMEN EVEN WITH WILDCATS

Wesleyan, Wayne Battle To 6 to 6 Draw In Night Game.

Nebraska Wesleyan's Plainsmen were balked in their effort to open the 1934 home season with a win Friday night at the Wesleyan bowl, being forced to take nothing better than a 6-6 margin with the Wayne Normal Wildcats in a wide-open game. Wayne held a 6-0 margin at the intermission, but the Farley outfit came back strong in the third frame.

Wayne scored in the first period when Gast drove off tackle for five yards and a touchdown to climax a Wayne drive which had been balked earlier when the same Gast fumbled as he was going across the goal line, Rod Shuman recovering the ball for a touchback.

Wesleyan Evens the Score.

Coach Hickman started his second-stringers as the second half opened and Seyler plunged off tackle for 22 yards to bring the ball to Wayne's 20-yard line. Somerhalder picked up five yards and Wayne's top eleven came in the game. Somerhalder then made it a first down, driving to the three-yard line and then hit tackle for the score on the next play.

Both tries for points fizzled, Wayne's going haywire on a pass from Kunkle to Manning and Wesleyan's being a placekick by Hollis Johnson which went wide

Gast's 55-yard run starting four yards behind his own goal line on a punt return was the longest effort of the day and only poor blocking kept him from making a touchdown. Three Wildcat blockers missed Dandy Hawkins Plainsmen safety, the veteran quarter pulling Gast down on the Wesleyan 25-yard stripe

Manning and Gast did yeoman work for the visitors while Johnson, Hawkins and Somerhalder were tops for Wesleyan

BIG MOMENT.

Jack Downey, new trainer of the St. Mary's college football team, has had his moments. He is one of the few men to hold a victory over Jack Dempsey. That was before the war—before Dempsey was a famous fighter. St. Mary's recent trainer was Dan Hurley, who was blind, but efficient.

JACKSON TURNS IN NEAT VICTORY

Beechner's Team Hangs 21 to 0 Defeat On College View.

The big and fast Jackson high school grid machine opened its campaign for the 1934 Greater Lincoln league championship Friday afternoon by plastering a 21-0 defeat on the College View eleven at Wesleyan field. Jackson led, 7-0, at the intermission. The victory afforded sweet revenge to the Crimson for the 7-0 defeat the Robson clan forced Friday's winners to gulp last fall.

Jackson's first score came midway in the opening stanza after the Crimson had played a punting game, "waiting for the breaks." Miller fumbled Knight's punt and Davis recovered on the Viewmen 47-yard stripe. Knight slashed off tackle for 11 yards, Farnsworth smacked center for 15 and on the third play Neal Davis hit the southside left tackle for 21 yards and the score. Knight plunged for the extra point.

Jackson Gets Busy Again.

Three College View drives were halted before reaching too dangerous territory, but no more scoring was recorded until the final frame A third-period drive featuring Knight and Davis, left the ball on the College three-yard mark as the canto ended and Knight broke through tackle for the needed distance on the first play of the final period, Gunn plunging for the additional point.

The third score was a gift on the part of Badousek, College View sub safety He elected to catch a Crimson punt on his one-yard line but picked up no ground His poor punt was brought back to the College View 11-yard line by Harrington and Donahoo hit the line for the touchdown on the first play. Davis skirted end for the point

Jackson narrowly missed another score in the last frame Davis hit the College right side and reversed the field for a 57-yard gallop, placing the ball on the southside four-yard line Knight hit center for the needed yardage but fumbled and a purple player recovered for a touchback

Neal Davis stole the show in the Crimson backfield, outdoing Bus Knight both offensively and defensively Seligman, Elrod and Currier topped the Jackson linemen while College View relied mostly upon Walters and Richardson in the line and Miller in the backfield

DUMPS DUTCH IN STRAIGHT FALLS

Tigerman Pesek Attends To Case of Heffner On 4-H Mat.

John Pesek, the Ravenna Tigerman, disposed of Ernie "Dutch" Heffner of Sherman, Texas, in straight falls in the feature match of the wrestling program at the 4-H arena Friday night. A crowd estimated at 1,500 was on deck for the bout, which was preceded by a short talk and demonstration by Farmer Burns, former world champion grappler, now 74 years old.

Pesek captured the first fall from his tubby opponent in 16 minutes with a right to the jaw and an arm lock. It was the first time John has resorted to such tactics to win a fall before a Lincoln audience, pouncing on Heffner after the latter's head had hit the canvas with a resounding smack. The second fall came with a toe hold in 4:45, Heffner misplacing a cartilage in his weak left knee.

Goal Kick Decides It.

To say it was an upset would put it mildly. The final three minutes of the game were jammed with breath-taking thrills. A 28-yard pass put Nevada on the Gaels' 20-yard line. With the score 7 to 6 in St. Mary's favor, Coach Brick Mitchell of Nevada rushed in a new quarterback, who immediately called for a field goal.

Big Tom Cashill, Nevada's 200-pound center, dropped back to do the kicking. He faded to the 35-yard line as he received the ball and with the strong St. Mary's line surging at him from all sides, he calmly drop-kicked the ball over the crossbar and straight between the posts.

Teachers Upset Colorado U.

GREELEY, Colo., Oct. 13—(I. N. S.)—Colorado Teachers college today celebrated the most surprising football victory in its history, a 13-to-7 win over the powerful University of Colorado eleven here last night. It was the first time in the many years the two teams have met on the gridiron that teachers ever came out ahead.

"Colorado will trim us at least 25 to 0," John Hancock, Teachers' coach, declared just before the game.

But Coach Hancock didn't realize the scoring potentialities of Don (Punch) Merriman, Waukegan, Ill., and Walter (Indian) Mast, backs, who ripped the Colorado line to shreds, nor the deadly accuracy of Quarterback Roy Hardin's passes.

Mast scored both touchdowns for Teachers. Hardin completed seven passes for a total of 45 yards.

Jim Counter, quarterback, scored Colorado's lone touchdown, on a blocked kick and a spectacular 29-yard run. The score by periods:

BLUEBIRDS LOSE TO HAVELOCK HI

Cathedral Repulsed, 20 to 0, In Gridiron Clash With Engineers

Havelock high, the Greater Lincoln league defending champion, cleared the second hurdle in the path toward the 1934 bunting by handing Cathedral a 20-0 setback Friday afternoon on Ballard field. The winners had a 13-0 margin at half-time and the victory left the Shoptowners in front of the pack by a one-half game margin. Jackson is the only other undefeated league team.

Havelock piled up an early lead scoring twice in the first quarter Whittaker broke the ice with a 20-yard touchdown gallop, after receiving a back pass, and scored the extra point on a pass from Helvey. The second score came when the combination of Helvey to Jones clicked late in the period A pass for the added point missed fire.

The third touchdown was chalked up in the third canto, Helvey scoring from the one-yard stripe on a line buck midway in the period Jones smashed center for the extra point.

Cathedral threatened in the final frame when the Bluebirds intercepted a pass and drove to the Engineers' three-yard line, but Havelock stiffened and repulsed the threat.

Helvey and Whittaker in the backfield and Grabowski in the line were the Havelock aces, while Cathedral placed its faith on Malone and Brick
